REPORT.

IN presenting for the sixteenth time the Annual Report of the operations of the Mission to the Coloured People in Canada, the Committee have to announce certain important changes which it has been felt advisable to make in the management of the affairs of the Mission.

The Committee of that Mission have always worked in the closest connexion with the Committee of the Colonial and Continental Church Society, of whose operations the Mission has always been considered a branch, and through whom all its proceedings, as regards financial matters, have been conducted.

Various circumstances have made it impossible for the members of the Ladies' Committee, who have always taken the deepest interest in its proceedings, to continue to devote to it the time and active service which they once did, and the Committee have therefore come to the determination that the time has arrived when this Mission Fund should, as regards its management, be placed on the same footing with the other Funds connected with the Colonial and Continental Church Society, and be under the direct control and management of the General Committee of that Society.

The Mission Fund itself will continue to be a distinct and separate one, devoted to the same work, and distributed with one exception, to be hereafter mentioned, to the same agents ; and the Committee earnestly hope that those who have so kindly and so long given it its support, whether as contributors or collectors, will continue their services, fully assured that they are as highly valued and as thankfully received as ever. The only difference will be that all contributions for the future instead of being forwarded to the Treasurer of the Ladies' Committee will be received at the office of the Society by the Rev. Lewis Borrett White, who will continue to act as Secretary for this Special Fund.

In looking back on the years which have passed since this Mission was first established, the Committee cannot but feel deeply thankful to Him who has permitted them to help in providing for a poor and too-generally despised people the blessings of the ministrations of Christ's Gospel, carried on by faithful members of the Church of England. It was to be expected that with the cessation of the romantic and exciting circumstances which in the earlier days of the Mission attended the escape of slaves to Canada, there would be a falling off in the interest felt in the work and in the amounts received. This has, in fact, been the case, and, as old friends have passed away, it has not been always possible to supply their places.

That this has not been the case to a greater extent than it has must, the Committee feel, be attributed, under God, to the continued and zealous efforts of those who have had their interest aroused in the condition of the coloured population in Canada, and who have still contributed to and collected for the Mission. To them they render once more their hearty thanks, and wish them God speed in the continuance of their work. They would remind them in the words of one of the best friends of the Mission in Canada, the Dean of Toronto :—

“It is quite natural that the interest formerly taken in the fugitive slaves should have diminished since the abolition of slavery in the United States, but it is certain that great numbers of the coloured people formerly in slavery still remain scattered throughout the Canadian Dominion who are, for the most part, in a neglected and destitute spiritual condition.”

The Committee, therefore, now commit the future management of the Mission into the hands of others—not to strangers, but to those, indeed, who are already acquainted with all the minutest details of the work. That the interests of the Mission will be as carefully attended to as ever they feel quite sure. They cannot, however, conclude these preliminary observations without gratefully mentioning the names of some who have, from the earliest days of the Mission to the present time, in a special manner encouraged and helped them in their work. To Mrs. Kinnaird, who has so often welcomed them at her house, and given so much valuable counsel ; to Mrs. Carbonell, who, as Treasurer, has so ably for sixteen years managed the financial affairs of the Mission ; to Mrs. Clarke also, who, though now for some years absent from London, has still taken the most lively interest in the progress of the Mission, assisting it by those services as the correspondent of many who work for it, which the Committee trust she will still continue—they desire to return their heartfelt thanks for all the help which they have given them.

It will be seen, on reference to the financial statement, that the receipts from donations and subscriptions are only 339*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*—about 15*l.* less than those of last year, yet the expenditure in the grants to the various agents were 462*l.*, showing a deficiency of 122*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.* The other expenses connected with the management of the Mission amount to 24*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.*, so that the deficiency of 146*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.* has necessarily been made up from the Reserved Fund.

It is evident that this Fund would soon be exhausted if the expenditure of the Mission were continued at its present rate, and the Committee have been therefore reluctantly compelled to look forward to a reduction of the grants, and to prepare their friends in Canada for such a reduction.

The General Committee of the Society have, however, taken on themselves for the present the payment of the grant to Windsor, and an arrangement has been made in the colony whereby a permanent grant has been given to Mr. Hurst out of the Commutation Fund, so that he is able at once to resign half of the grant hitherto received from the Coloured Mission Fund, and he has good hopes that before long his Mission will be altogether a self-supporting one.

But even after the amount of the grant to Windsor has been deducted, the expenditure of the Mission will still be in excess of its receipts if those receipts remain at their present amount—show no increase. The Committee would once more, therefore, urge on their friends not now to withdraw their hand, but, by their continued support, to disappoint their fears ; that the help which is so much needed and so much valued may still be given.

The Committee now proceed to give, as usual, extracts from the correspondence of the Agents, which will give detailed information as to each separate Station.

I. Diocese of Huron.

(1.) WINDSOR.

The following extracts from the letters of Rev. J. Hurst will, the Committee are sure, be read with special interest. First, as describing Mr. Hurst's field of labour, showing how God seems to be blessing his labours by increasing the sphere of them ; and, as regards the work among the coloured people, showing how Mr. Hurst, with the assistance of his family, has striven to care for the blacks as well as for the whites. Secondly, as explaining the arrangements already alluded to, whereby Mr. Hurst ceases to become an agent of the Coloured Mission, while still remaining on the staff of the Colonial and Continental Church Society.

Mr. Hurst wrote towards the close of 1868 (Nov. 11) :—

“ Things are going on without change in the Coloured Mission. Jessy and Elizabeth keep up Miss Williams' classes among the adults, and we have still the afternoon Sunday-school, but this will be changed for Sunday morning Bible-classes during the winter, to be held in the Church before morning service. This may bring some of them to Church more regularly, and will be of more real use than preaching.

“ Times have been very hard here during the past two years, but now there is an improvement, and I shall endeavour to take advantage of it by trying to wipe out the 120*t*. debt still on the Church.”

In a letter, dated December 6, he gives an idea of the difficulties which still exist in this particular field of labour, and of the manner in which the two races are still divided one from the other :—

“ For some time past changes have been contemplated in the working of the Mission among the coloured people. One of these we have attempted, and found it a failure. Instead of teaching the coloured Sunday-school in a separate room, we brought the children into the Church where the white Sunday-school is taught, but at a different hour.

“A few weeks before Christmas we commenced teaching the children, both coloured and white, some Christmas and other hymns, for a special service in the Church. In the afternoon of the Sunday before Christmas this service was held. About 30 members of the coloured school were present, over 200 white children, and many adults. Apparently everything went off well. All read the Psalms, responded, and sang together in a manner that astonished and delighted every one. After the prayers, &c., I preached a sermon suited to children and young persons, and a collection was taken up, amounting to eight dollars—a wonderful sum for such an occasion. We were all pleased, and thought we had succeeded in bringing white and coloured children together. But in this we were greatly deceived, for next Sunday not a coloured child appeared; they had taken offence at something, and gave us one more proof that the time has not come when coloured and white can be brought together at Windsor. It can be done in Toronto and other towns east of this, but not here. Under the circumstances, we could only fall back upon the separate school, which we have done. A Mission School has been established in the street where most of the coloured people live, averaging from thirty to sixty in attendance, according to weather, and is held on Sunday morning before Church-time. Persons from other Churches come and help, and I think, upon the whole, it will work well. We cannot do what we would, and so we do what we can.

A CONFIRMATION SCENE.

“On Sunday, 27th December, we had a Confirmation. Our own Bishop was quite an invalid, and unable to do Episcopal duty, but at his request the Bishop of Michigan came and confirmed. The Church was overcrowded, no such Protestant congregation having been before seen in Windsor. Forty candidates were presented for confirmation, the Bishop preached an excellent sermon, and so encouraged every one as to strengthen my hands not a little.

A CANADIAN SCHOOL TREAT.

“Cheered by all these things, the parents of the Sunday scholars insisted on giving the children a festival to cheer them. Accordingly, the Town-hall was lent for the purpose, abundance of food was sent in, the members of the choir provided some good music, and we held the festival on New Year’s-eve. More than 200 children were present, and about 100 members of the congregation. The children were held together in good order three hours, alternately singing their Sunday-school hymns, listening to addresses, and to the music of the choir.”

The following letter of January 27, though referring principally to Mr. Hurst’s work in connexion with the white part of the population of Windsor, will be read with interest by many who remember his appeals for his Mission during his visit to England:—

“Yours of the 31st ult. has arrived. Thanks for your kind wishes and prayers for myself and family this year. May the same mercies be poured out abundantly on you and yours.

“The ladies of the congregation are trying to raise money for a fence around the Church property. I wish this could be done before the picture is taken. You will not be sorry to hear that we are likely soon to need more accommodation in Church. The pews are all let, and we need free seats for stragglers and the poor. When in England, I stated publicly that my congregation could be doubled, and it is done; but what are we to do now? We can add 100 seats to the Church at a cost of about 200*l*., but where is the money?

"A Vestry Meeting was held on Tuesday last, at which it was agreed to abandon all idea of purchasing the house now used as a parsonage, and instead to purchase three lots on the south side of the Church and build a good brick parsonage. If we can purchase the three lots the Church will own a whole block, 165 feet by 140 feet, and have streets all around. This leaves a space at the east end of the Church for a school, which, with a parsonage on the south lot, would make everything complete. The ground and parsonage will cost 600*l.* at least, and be all that Windsor can do for five years to come. Besides this, we must think of increased accommodation in Church, and a school. I do not at present see through these difficulties, and yet earnestly hope some way will be opened that the Gospel may not be hindered. I shall, if possible, avoid leaving my parish to collect money; no substitute can fall into my place, and for months after my return we still feel the effects of my absence. O, that some person who has wealth would spend 1,000*l.* in Windsor for Christ's sake, and let me go on with parochial duty, building up a parish which shall remain for all time working for Jesus."

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

"It is really wonderful how our Sunday-school has increased of late; there is hardly a class that does not need to be divided. I feel a great interest in these children, because in a very few years they will be scattered all over this continent. Now is our seed-time; in eternity its fruit will be seen, and that fruit will, in a great measure, be owing, under God, to the Colonial and Continental Church Society. There is already some evidence of this."

SEED SOWN BEARING FRUIT.

"A gentleman who some time ago embraced the Gospel in Windsor, but who has now settled in Texas, has written to me, and I give you the following extract from his letter:—
'Many times since leaving Windsor I have thought of the both sad and pleasant hours spent there. I have had trials of many kinds since we parted, and have tried to profit by them, and believe they were doing me good. I was married recently in New Orleans, and came to this city to reside. Pray for us; you cannot imagine the terrible condition of society in this part of the country.'"

The following is Mr. Hurst's report for quarter ending March 31, 1869:—

"My work in the service of the Society has chiefly been among the negro portion of the population, of whom Windsor still contains a great number; according to our last census, 800.

"In the earlier portion of my time here preaching was the only means used among them, and being single-handed, with a very wide and populous field of labour, their education was left entirely to the common schools, which, of course, only dealt with the children. But, during the past ten years, a great change has come over the condition of the coloured people—the children have grown up in the schools, taught, for the most part, by fairly competent teachers, and the young people among them are almost as well-educated as the whites. Also, quite a number of those who came here in the later years of American slavery have returned to the States, and now our coloured population consists chiefly of settled families, with their own school and Churches. Changes like these—in every way desirable—have rendered necessary corresponding changes in the manner of working the Mission. We have still to do with the same negro character, the same natural difficulties, but no longer with the same uneducated and otherwise ignorant mass of people."

"I do not think it wise to interfere, in a place like this, with their Churches, their services, or their preachers, but rather encourage them in every voluntary and self-sustaining effort, without any regard to denominational differences."

"Our present method is to look out for work which would be left undone, and to deal with deficiencies but too plainly visible. It struck me some time ago that we must do what we could for the mothers among them, and accordingly classes of women were formed, and are still kept up, where women are taught to read, write, knit, or whatever they may need to learn. These classes have been regularly held (common school holidays excepted) on the afternoons of Monday and Thursday in each week for more than two years past, and with the most satisfactory results.

"These mothers were once slaves, and, of course, very ignorant, not to say coarse and rude; but now they read fairly, some can write letters, and I attend to give religious instruction, the rest being given by my two elder daughters.

"We find this method working admirably among them, and well adapted to negro society. No method we have ever tried has worked so well or lasted so long.

"A Sunday-school was opened about the same time as these classes, and is still held, with an attendance of about sixty; but during the past year it has become more non-denominational, persons from Dissenting Churches also taking part in it. This, I think, is right, for the negroes are chiefly Dissenters.

"Up to last year we tried various means of bringing coloured and white children together, but now, having the plainest evidence on the part of the negro that they do not desire it, we shall make no more attempts, but wait for the time when, some having returned to the Southern States, the rest will become more known and respected, and the two colours will feel very much as they do in the eastern portions of the Dominion."

Thus on June 23, 1869, Mr. Hurst mentions a diminution in the number of the coloured population in Windsor, and looks forward, it will be seen, to Windsor becoming less and less distinctively a station of the Mission:—

"Since my last report a little change has appeared in my Mission. From the beginning of this year it has been evident that the negro population has been disposed to go away to the States. Wages are higher there than in Canada, and work more continuous, and, of course, men with families must be expected to be influenced by these things.

"Times are dull here, and money scarce, so gradually but surely the negro will leave, unless, having acquired a homestead, he be unable to sell it. I heard the minister of the Coloured Baptist Church say, not more than a month ago, that their Church had lost thirty members by going away. So far these changes have made little difference in our work. We still keep up the week-day classes of women, and the morning Sunday-school. It is remarkable that those who attend these means still remain, and, being the more settled ones, will still be here and require to be dealt with separately for some time to come. Upon the whole, however, I am convinced the time is very near when the coloured people of Windsor must be looked upon as simply forming a portion of a pastoral charge, and the Mission considered a white one, with a sprinkling of coloured people.

"I have never seen so much energy put forth for Church purposes and progress. Since the Easter offertory, which cleared away the Church debt, there is quite a new feeling. Before that it was heavy, dull work to collect money for debt, there was nothing to be seen for the money, and efforts seemed to be made in vain. Now the people feel that every dollar raised makes its mark, and several necessary improvements are already in progress. Although the accommodation in the church was doubled in 1866, there has not been a pew to let for six months past, while families are waiting for seats to drop loose. All this year our communicants have numbered 100 in the aggregate, with an attendance of forty to sixty, and a gradual increase.

"The Sunday-school averages about 200, summer and winter, with a staff of twenty teachers.

"To make the teachers efficient I meet them once a week, and prepare the lesson for the following Sunday. This, with constant attention to Sunday-school music, and an occasional public service for children on Sunday afternoons, keeps up the interest felt in the school, and also the number. The ladies of the congregation are at present working diligently to put a substantial fence around the Church grounds, to make some necessary improvement in the interior of the Church, and purchase a site for a parsonage."

The friends of the Mission will thus have been prepared for the following letter (July 13), describing the change whereby Mr. Hurst receives a permanent income from local funds, relinquishing the grant from the Coloured Mission, though still receiving a grant of less amount from the parent Society till his Mission shall be able to do without such help.

The Committee feel sure that this arrangement will be considered a satisfactory one, and, in the growing prosperity of Mr. Hurst's Mission, see a token of the success they most desire, the best proof that the help given has, by God's blessing, not been in vain. It seems strange, indeed, to them no longer to number Mr. Hurst among their agents; but they part from him assured that, though he is no longer on their list, the work for the benefit of the coloured part of his people will be carried on in the same spirit as heretofore.

" Quite a matter of importance was arranged at the last Annual Meeting of our Church Society. By the death of some of the Commuted clergy a fund has been for some time accumulating, called the Surplus Commutation Fund. This is now divided at the rate of 200 dollars per annum among those who have served eight years in the diocese, so far as the money will reach. But by a clause in the bye-law all those who received more than 300 dollars per annum from any outside source were excluded from the benefit. Of course, I was one of these. Feeling that there was a little injustice about this to the Society, and acting with the advice of Dean Hellmuth, I wrote to the Bishop, resigning the half of my stipend from the Society, and asked him to put me on the Commutation List. This he did, and the allowance is for life. I shall lose fifty dollars by it this year, and my parish, with so much on their hands, can hardly make it up; but still I am content. I also feel desirous of relieving the Society of more as soon as possible, but times are hard, and I can expect nothing more from Windsor for some time to come.

A FRESH EFFORT DETERMINED ON.

" After much thought and prayer, I have concluded that it is my duty to make another effort for the enlargement of my Church. My work is hindered, and the time prolonged when we shall be self-supporting. Families are going to other and Dissenting Churches because we have no seats. Can you wonder at my anxiety? Windsor people, poor as they are, are liberal—you saw proof of that in the offertory last Easter; but, with a parsonage-house to build, they have all that they can do for two or three years to come. I send you plans of the proposed alterations and view of what the Church will be, and where the parsonage will stand. We have not yet decided about the school. The plan of building it at the end of the Church is abandoned, as we need all the room there for Church enlargement.

HELP SOUGHT.

" The work in my parish is constantly increasing, new openings present themselves, and it is more than ever important that I remain at my post; will you, therefore, with your accustomed kindness, help me on in this arduous work, labouring, as I shall, under great difficulty, and working, as I must, a long time, but when finished the parish will be one made by the Society, and one of which, I hope, they will never be ashamed."

(2.) DRESDEN.

The following letter of Rev. T. Hughes, October, 1868, will, as usual, be found to give very interesting information, not only as to his own Mission in particular, but as to the condition and prospects of the coloured population in general :—

“ Sometimes I think that the work of this Mission is more of an uphill character than that of any other. This may, perhaps, arise in some measure from the tendency there is in all of us to magnify our own difficulties, and fancy them to be greater than those with which others have to contend. But, after making full allowance for this tendency, the position of the coloured people in America is such as to justify me in saying that the missionary, who is placed by the providence of God in this department of the Lord’s vineyard, must be prepared for a work of a most trying and depressing kind. The coloured people being scattered among a white population which, though professedly Christian, not only refuses to hold any Christian intercourse or communion with them, but looks with coldness upon anyone who strives to promote their welfare, are keenly alive to their degradation, and especially resent the treatment they receive from the religious denominations. This makes them suspicious and doubtful of the motives of any white clergyman who interests himself in their behalf. Under such circumstances, can it be surprising that comparatively little progress is made, or that your missionary, alone and unsupported, should sometimes give way to feelings of despondency. This is, indeed, ‘the day of small things’ with us, literally a ‘casting our bread upon the waters.’ Oh, for more faith to rely upon the sure promise that we shall ‘find it after many days!’ The work is the Lord’s, and we know that He will not let it come to nought, but the ‘earthen vessel’ is weak indeed. Pray that grace may be given him unflaggingly to persevere.

“ The novelty of our new Church has now passed away, so that we have not so many strangers visiting us as at first; but the regular members of the congregation are steady in their attendance, and we have received several real accessions to our numbers during the past three months. There is, too, an earnestness, devotedness, and consistency of life among my little band of communicants which is delightful to witness, and constitutes my great encouragement.

A FENCE FOR THE CHURCH NEEDED.

Now the Church is finished, we are trying to raise the means to erect around it a neat and substantial picket fence, which will cost about seventy-five dollars. The Churchwardens are working zealously for this object, and have already more than half the money, so that we hope to get it done before winter sets in, and nearly, if not quite, paid for. Four years ago we planted some shade trees around the site, which are growing nicely, and when the fence is done the Church and grounds will have a very pretty appearance, and, in this respect, will not, I trust, be without some effect for good upon the people.

THE SCHOOL.

You will learn from Mr. Highgate’s report, which I enclose, the condition of the school. While there are too many who live within reach of it who do not value it as they ought, and send their children very irregularly, many, I am thankful to say, avail themselves of its advantages to the utmost, and are most grateful to their English friends for sustaining it. Its need was never more apparent than at the present time, as the common schools continue to be rigidly, though, I believe, illegally closed against coloured children. The people have made several spasmodic attempts to maintain schools by voluntary subscriptions in two sections, too far distant for children to come to our school; but they are altogether too poor for efforts of this kind. Two weeks ago a leading coloured man, living four miles from Dresden, waited on me to ask if nothing could be done for his locality. He stated that there are from two to three hundred children of school-going age in his and the adjacent concessions and no school of any kind. I hardly think there can be so large a number as that, but told him to collect correct statistics, and have promised to go out and meet the people there and talk the matter over, but do not see that anything can be done.

FASTORAL WORK.

"My sick list during the past few months has been very heavy indeed, and a very large proportion of my time has been taken up in visiting them. Much of the sickness has had its origin in the extremely hot summer which we have had, but several were cases of long-standing illness. The deaths have been unusually numerous, some of these strikingly illustrating the uncertainty of life, and the little hold we have upon earthly things. One case was that of a farmer from Lower Canada, who came into this neighbourhood early in the summer to pay a visit to some relations. He was taken sick and unable to return home. Being a member of the Church, he sent for me to visit him. I was glad to find that he was a Christian man, and had long been a communicant. He said that he felt that this sickness was come for his end, and, having a little property, requested me to recommend to him a suitable person to draw up his will, so that he might have nothing to think of but to prepare for death, which he thought was quite near at hand. It pleased God, however, that he should endure three months of the most acute suffering before he should be delivered from the burden of the flesh. He died on the third of last month in faith and fear of the Lord. Another case was that of a very respectable young man, whom I have long known, and whom I married four years ago. He lived about eight miles from here, but early in August had occasion to come to Dresden on some matter of business, was taken ill, and he, too, could not return home. He continued to get worse, and before the month was out I committed his body to the grave. He has left a young widow and three children. I visited him very frequently, and his great delight and comfort was to hear of the Saviour's love.

A SAD CASE.

Another death was of a still more painful character. A fine young man, who lived, I fear, altogether careless about his soul, was carried off in a few days. He had charge of a boat which plied betwixt this river and Detroit in the cordwood trade. While superintending the unloading of his boat at Detroit on Monday, the 20th of July, the weather being at the time fearfully hot, he was foolish enough to drink too freely of ice-water. He returned to Dresden on the following day suffering from the effects of his indiscretion, and before the close of the week was a corpse. When he felt that death was approaching he sent for me. I found him in a state of great bodily agony. His sufferings were shocking to witness. He was anxious now, most anxious about the safety of his soul, but the pains of the body were so intense, and he writhed and rolled about in such a dreadful manner that it was difficult to talk to him. I stayed with him a considerable time trying to keep his thoughts fixed upon the Saviour of sinners, for I saw that death was very near. I shall never forget the earnestness with which he once suddenly turned to me and asked, 'Mr. Hughes, what is the need of all this pain and suffering?' I endeavoured by the clear light which God's Word affords to answer his inquiry. But what a solemn question it was, and how much is involved in it! Can the unbeliever, who scoffs at Revelation, answer this dying man's question, and tell us how it is that pain and suffering are to be found in the world, and what is the need of them? This poor young man died in about an hour after I left, and on the following Sunday I buried him. There was a large gathering at his funeral, and as it is the practice here to preach a sermon at such times, I had an opportunity of speaking a solemn word of warning to many who seldom attend a place of worship.

A HOPEFUL END.

"I cannot forbear mentioning one other case, viz., that of the wife of an English labourer, whom I buried two weeks ago (Sept. 20). Hers was a case of long protracted illness, and, as she lived near me, I was able to see her very often. Many times she appeared to be on the point of death, and then again she would so far rally as to give strong hopes of her ultimate recovery. She always gladly received my visits, and if I omitted to call for three or four days, she would say how much she had missed me. From the first she said she felt persuaded that she should not get well, but yet she could not give up the world. Very many earnest conversations I had with her, and sometimes she would be so far moved as to ask me specially to pray that God would change her heart; but still she clung to the world with such tenacity, that I feared death would overtake her unprepared. However, through the mercy of God, a few weeks before her death a great change came over her. The Holy Spirit opened her eyes, not only to acknowledge with the lip, but to see and feel her sinfulness. 'Oh,' she would say, 'I feel the weight of my sins like a lump upon my heart! What shall I do to be saved?' In this state of mind she continued two or three weeks, crying night and day for pardon, but still no message of peace was vouchsafed. But one evening, a few days before her death, she sent for me. When I entered the house I heard her voice repeating the words, 'Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.' I stood at the little bedroom door for a moment, and the sight which met my eyes gladdened my heart. She was sitting upright in bed with her glasses on, and her husband, with tears streaming down his face, holding the Bible and a light that she might read for herself those precious words. As soon as she saw me she said, 'I shall not be long here, Mr. Hughes. I have given up the world now, and wish to tell you to-night what a great sinner I have been. I have wanted to tell you before, but was ashamed to do so.' And then in her simple way she told me how carelessly she had lived and how long she had neglected her soul, adding, with the greatest emphasis, 'and I knew better, and had been taught better, but now I feel the burden of my sins. I don't want to live. I want rest—rest for my soul,' and much to the same effect. I assured her that the Saviour would fulfil His promise and give her rest if she would only throw herself on His mercy. 'I know it,' she said, 'but somehow or other I want faith to rest upon His promise.' I brought to her mind some of the other sweet promises of God's Word, and commended her in prayer to God, and left her feeling assured that the Holy Spirit would finish the good work He had begun. I saw her but once more before she entered into that rest she so earnestly sought."

Mr. Highgate's report is as follows:—

"I take very great pleasure in stating that the attendance of pupils this term has been larger than any previous one since I have been in charge of the school, and what appears still more encouraging is, that the parents of the children in the neighbourhood generally manifest a greater interest in the education of their children. This they have demonstrated by sending their children in greater numbers and with greater regularity than heretofore.

"I have sixty-three pupils in regular attendance this term; all of these, with the exception of thirteen, study arithmetic."

So much interest has been felt in Mr. Hughes' Church, and so many of the friends of the Mission have contributed to it, that they will be glad to read the following description of it given by Mr. Hughes, and also to see a view of it taken from a photograph sent by Mr. Hughes. Plain and unpretending in outward form, it seems well adapted for its object; and it is the result of the untiring exertions of one who has laboured, principally by God's blessing, to build up a spiritual Church, aided by those who have learnt to value and esteem him for his works' sake. The Committee pray that minister and people may have much reason for knowing it, by spiritual blessings received, to be indeed a House of God and a gate of Heaven.

DRESDEN CHURCH.

Mr. Hughes wrote February 28, 1869 :—

"I am at last able to forward you photographs of the Dresden Church. They are not so good as I could wish, the person who took them not being a professional but merely a carpenter, who is trying to turn a penny in this way. If all be well in the spring I hope to get another taken, as the winter is not a good time for such work. Owing to the unusual mildness of the weather you will perceive that there is but little snow about.

"The Church is really a very neat and chaste building, the inside, I think, even more so than the out. The only unsightly things about it are the chimneys, but these were unavoidable, though they might have been smaller. Of the external appearance the pictures will enable you to judge. With regard to the interior I may mention that it has an open ceiled roof of dressed timbers nicely stained and varnished, the principal supports of which spring from neat corbels on the side walls; the pews, which are open ones, are also stained and varnished. The windows are of ground glass with coloured borders, and the pulpit, reading-desk, communion-table, and rails are of a uniform Gothic pattern, painted and grained oak. Our means did not permit us to build a chancel, but we had the chancel arch turned in the gable, so that one may at any time be easily added. There is nothing of a pretentious character about the building either inside or out—everything is exactly what it appears to be, and the work throughout is done in a most substantial manner. I was very fortunate in getting a carpenter who had not been long out from England, who had had great experience in Church work at home, and was anxious to establish a character as a good workman here.

“The size of the building is 52 by 32, and the total cost, inclusive of stoves, lamps, and other internal fittings, was 2043·16 dols., a little over 400*l.* sterling; but it must be remembered that a large portion of the timber the members of the congregation got out of the bush themselves in the log, so that for this we only had to pay for the sawing. This effected a considerable saving. They also drew all the stone, bricks, and other materials to the site, and turned out whenever their assistance was needed during the progress of the building. Some worked continuously for days together at the time the roof was being put on. If we had had to pay for all this voluntary labour cheerfully given, the cost of the Church would have been increased by several hundred dollars, or we should have been compelled to cut down our plans, and probably have spoilt the appearance of the building. At the time of the opening there was a debt of 116·62 dols., for which I made myself personally responsible. Towards the liquidation of this debt the congregation has since paid 50 dols.]

“In sending the photographs I thought that these few particulars respecting the Church would not be out of place, and I think that our kind friends at home, through whose munificence this work has been accomplished, will see that their money has been well expended. May the Lord richly recompense them for their Christian liberality.”

(3.) LONDON.

In London it will be seen that the students of Huron College continue to carry on their work as Catechists among the coloured population under the superintendence of the Rector, Dean Hellmuth. Their reports are a brief record of visits paid by them, but the extracts given will be sufficient to show that the work is carried on in the right spirit, as they go from house to house testifying repentance towards God and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ:—

“April 23rd, 1868.—Made two visits. Read the Scriptures and engaged in prayer at each of them. One of those visited, Mrs. S—, told me that she would attend more earnestly to the concerns of her soul, for she has lived too long in the neglect of them. I conversed with her a long time, and urged upon her the necessity of becoming a member of the Church; not only to attend church and be a communicant, but be united to Christ by a living faith; and I endeavoured to show her as simply as possible the plan of salvation. She appeared to take a heart interest in the matter.

" Saturday, 25th.—Made three visits. Read the Scripture and prayed with their families. Mrs. B—— appears to be but little concerned about her salvation. She never attends church, and takes little interest in hearing the Word of God.

" Thursday, 7th.—Made four visits. Read the Scripture, and prayed at T——'s. Conversed for some time with a woman who lives at W——'s about her salvation, especially about a change of heart, and showed her that 'we must be converted, and become as little children,' if we would be saved. She appeared to feel the truth of the remarks.

" Saturday, 9th.—Made five visits. Read the Scripture and prayed at three places. I believe that H—— is somewhat changed for the better. I hear that he has not so much dislike to religion, for he has been attending his church more regular of late. Oh, that God may lead him into the way of truth!

" Thursday, 4th.—Made six visits. Read the Scripture and prayed at five places, and spoke to some about attending church, and about sending their children to the Sabbath-school in connexion with Christ's Church. A considerable number more of the children would go to the Sabbath-school if they had clothes fit to go with.

" Wednesday, 10th.—Made four visits. Read the Scripture and prayed at three places, and made remarks on the Holy Scripture, as I considered they might attend to it better by so doing. M——'s wife (a white woman) appeared to be impressed by what was said, and appeared to be resolved to attend more to the concerns of her soul.

" Wednesday, 24th.—Made seven visits. Read the Scripture and engaged in prayer in three of the places visited. Many of those whom I am accustomed to visit were at poor A——'s funeral; therefore I did not see them at their places to-day. I hope his sudden death will lead some of them to think more seriously about their latter end, especially as there is no certainty that he had made any preparation for death. His sisters are in great sorrow on account of his death, most of all because they fear that he was not prepared. They profess to be converted, and I do hope that a good work is going on in their minds. L—— was not at home to-day. I only saw his daughter, who is about thirteen years of age. She is one of those whom I prevailed on to go to Christ's Church Sabbath-school. Her father is a Baptist, but he is always glad to have me visit him. I read the Scripture with the daughter to-day, and spoke to her about her salvation and about the Sabbath-school. She says she likes the school, and she said she would give her heart to God. Some of M——'s children also go to the Sabbath-school. I spoke to one of the larger girls about going also. She said she would. I also spoke to her about the salvation in Jesus.

" The number of visits for this quarter is 150. These were exclusively to coloured people and their families.

" I have always endeavoured in my visitation to bring before the minds of the poor coloured people the grand doctrine of Christianity, 'Christ and him crucified,' both from the portions of Scripture read and in the remarks made upon it. I have also given a tract to each family almost each time I visited it, and I have endeavoured to get them to send their children to Sabbath-school. Some have done so, and more would do so if they had suitable dress for them. I have also spoken to many of them to attend church. My visits are well received, and I hope are the means of good to their souls.

" The coloured people will bear to be spoken plainly to, and, as a general thing, they even wish for plain speaking; and very few of them, when spoken to about their salvation, will begin to say, 'I am as good as my neighbours;' 'I have a good heart to every one;' 'I do not do wrong to any,' &c., but plainly acknowledge the sinfulness of their hearts and lives; and although there is reason to fear that among those who profess heart religion there are some deceptions, yet I trust there are a considerable number who understand the truth as it is in Jesus.

" Wednesday, April 14th, 1869.—Made four visits. Left tracts at each place, and read and prayed at G——'s, and also made remarks on matters which belong to life and peace.

“ Friday, 16th.—Made eight visits. We read God’s Word and prayed at four places, and spoke to some of those whom we saw about their salvation, and left a tract at each place.

“ Saturday, 17th.—Made seven visits. We read the Scripture and prayed at three places. J——’s family appears to be very careless about Divine things; they look too much at the faults and failings of others and too little at their own, which we endeavoured to show them.

“ Friday, May 14th.—Made eleven visits. Read God’s Word and prayed in nine places. J——’s daughter (a young woman) is dying of consumption. She is unprepared for death. She told us that she thought of becoming truly religious before she became sick. She now appears to be truly anxious to find Jesus. We gave her all the instruction we could about the way to become a partaker of Christ’s salvation, and we exhorted her to cast herself on the mercy of God through Christ. She told us she would endeavour to do so. We left her apparently much affected by our visit.

“ Wednesday, 19th.—Made twelve visits. J——’s daughter is still seeking the Lord, and her knowledge of the way seems to be enlarged.

“ Friday, 11th.—Made six visits. Left a tract at each place. Read God’s Word and prayed at four places. J——’s daughter has died. It is thought that she died in the Lord. A short time before her death she was enabled to trust in the Saviour, and all her fears vanished, and a sweet peace filled her soul.

“ The number of visits for this quarter is 202. They have been well received by the coloured people. We have always read God’s Word and prayed in their families when we had favourable opportunities, and we have always endeavoured to make such remarks as would bring before them the great plan of the sinner’s salvation. We pray that God may cause His own Word to bring forth much fruit. We have also distributed tracts among them; and, as a considerable number of the coloured children are able to read, we hope the tracts have been of much use to their families; and some old persons who are not able to read have got others to read the tracts to them. We believe that there are many truly pious persons among the coloured population in this place, and a visit to them is very often productive of much good to those who visit them. May the Lord bless His people and hasten His kingdom.”

II. Diocese of Toronto.

(1.) TORONTO.

The work in this diocese is carried on in the same manner as heretofore. Mr. Hall continues faithfully to discharge his duties as Scripture-reader among the coloured people in Toronto itself, and the Rev. R. H. Harris, of Fort William, visits those living in his neighbourhood.

The following are extracts from Mr. Hall’s reports:—

“ It is my duty again to lay before you a statement of my work for the quarter just brought to a close, during which period I have made 334 visits as follows:—Among the coloured people, 119, and the white, 146; to the House of Industry, 12; to the General Hospital, 24; to the gaol, 22; to the Lying-in Hospital, 10; and to the Magdalene Asylum, 1. My visits among these people are generally of a very gratifying and satisfactory character. One very interesting feature in them is their temperate habits. During the two years I have been visiting among them I remember meeting only one drunken person, a female, whose unfortunate predilection for intoxicating drink causes her to spend a large portion of her time in gaol. I have spoken much and earnestly to her on the sad consequences which must inevitably ensue from such a course, and though she makes fair promises of amendment she is still the slave of this debasing and soul-destroying vice. I find them also most willing and happy to receive instruction out of God's Word, so that I may truly say that with them it is never out of season. Many of them are well acquainted with that blessed Word which maketh wise unto salvation, and, I believe, are true servants of God; but while this is the general rule, I regret to say that there are exceptions, as I have met some careless ones with whom I have striven much, but as yet without any apparent success, but my hope is that the Word spoken may be watered by the Holy Spirit and bring forth much fruit to the honour and glory of God. Paul may plant and Apollos may water, but God giveth the increase.

Death has carried off four heads of families within the last three months, three of them were mothers. Of the four two of them died very suddenly, and the other two after a very protracted and painful illness. These latter I visited as often as opportunity permitted, and was with them just before the closing scene of their life, and certainly they gave the strongest testimony of faith in a crucified Saviour. With them the sting of death was taken away, and they were able to look forward with joy to a glorious resurrection morn. As usual I find tracts very acceptable and often very useful. I believe they are silent messengers of good to many; wherever I visit I always leave a tract behind me. Altogether I have distributed over 1,300.

A STORY OF THE PAST.

"During my visits I have met one very interesting case, that of a woman named M. M.—, a few incidents of whose life may interest. She is a native of one of the Southern States, and was brought up in slavery; she had been married some years when it was agreed between herself and her husband that they should endeavour to make their escape. The husband was the first to make the attempt, and succeeded, but it was not for fifteen years afterwards that his wife was equally fortunate, during which time she had lost all traces of her husband. After varied trials and privations she at length found him, but to her dismay another occupied her place, and she and her child were obliged to seek a home for themselves elsewhere. Accordingly they directed their steps to Canada, and have been located in this city for many years, making out an existence by dint of great labour; but amidst all her trials she has one comfort, and that is she is trusting in the Saviour, and looking forward to that rest which remaineth for the people of God. It is really delightful to hear her converse on religious subjects in her own simple way. Being unable to read she is in a great measure dependent upon the Sabbath instruction and an occasional visit from your Missionary for food for her soul, but hungering and thirsting after righteousness this does not suffice her, and in order to meet the difficulty she is devoting all her spare time in learning to read, and is looking forward with delight when she will be able to read about Christ for herself, and though she is now nearly seventy years of age, she is making considerable progress, and I have no doubt that if the Lord spares her for a few years her desire will be gratified.

SIGHT FOR THE BLIND.

"In the House of Industry there is another case of interest, that of a coloured man, who has been blind for several years. I proposed to him that he should learn to read though blind, but he could not understand how this could be, and seemed to think it quite impossible. However, I obtained from the U. C. B. and T. Society a copy of St. Matthew's Gospel in two parts, with embossed type, for the use of the blind, and got one of the men there to instruct him; at first his progress seemed very slow. He recently asked me for the second part, and said that he was able to read all the first. I brought him the second part and asked him to read a little for me, and I was surprised at the rapidity and accuracy with which he was able to do so. He says that whenever he feels lonely or low spirited he derives great comfort from it. Indeed, whenever I visit this institution I generally find him engaged in gliding his fingers gently over the letters, and in this way getting that knowledge which maketh wise unto salvation.

"During the quarter I have made 94 visits to families, and amongst the white people 160 visits, to gaol 19, to General Hospital 22, to House of Industry 9, to Lying-in Hospital 8, making in all 318 visits, and have distributed over 1,000 tracts."

(2.) ORO.

The Rev. R. H. Harris writes as follows :—

"I have been so busily engaged for some time that I have not been able until now to give my quarterly report to the Colonial and Continental Church Society. The past winter has been the most inclement that I ever saw in this province; this has rendered it most difficult and in some cases impossible to travel at all, especially last March. In fact, I was a few weeks ago hemmed in while on duty by enormous snowdrifts, so that I could not return home or proceed anywhere for some days. It has been to me a scene of great privation and hardship; but, although by no means strong or healthy, I have been sustained, by the good hand of God upon me, through it all. The negroes under my charge are most unwilling, if they can help it, to face the storms of winter; but notwithstanding the severity of the past winter their attendance on my services has been very good. My labours are most acceptable to them, and, I have strong reason to hope, have been blessed to some of them. Sunk as they are in the social scale to the very lowest level, through ignorance, poverty, and the prejudice against their colour, they are as much to be pitied as most of their heathen brethren in Africa. While I am amongst them I feel that I am indeed a missionary. I rejoice that spring is now so near at hand, as, when the roads dry up, I will be able to be more useful amongst the souls committed to my charge. May God give me His grace that I may be a faithful and useful labourer in His vineyard!"

"The young blacks, as is their custom in the spring, have hired out to the farmers in Oro and elsewhere, so that my congregation consists chiefly of the old people. These, I am happy to say, are very attentive. Many of the whites also in the neighbourhood, not belonging to our Church, notwithstanding the prejudice of colour, frequently attend our services. I have, therefore, reason to believe that I am doing a good work in Oro."

The Committee trust that the extracts from their correspondence with the agents of the Mission, given above, will be carefully read by all interested in its progress. They feel they will well repay perusal, and enable their friends to understand thoroughly the nature of the work, the character of the agents, the difficulties they have to overcome, the encouragements which cheer them. They ask, on their behalf, for the sympathy and prayers of Christ's people. They once more plead with those who, whether as receivers, collectors, or contributors, support them, not to relax anything of their exertions. They are sure they may feel that their assistance is still urgently needed—still gratefully received. They will find in these pages proofs that the work prospers, and that their labour is not in vain in the Lord.
